WASHINGTON.

SATURDAY May 15, 1880.

CROSBY S. NOYES ... Editor. The Evening Star has a regular, perma nent, bona fide daily circulation more than double that of any other daily paper published in Washington, and equal to tha of all the other daily papers here added to-

"A Tale of Two Cites." An interesting comparison of the paved streets of Paris and those of Washington, made up from official data, will be found in another column of to-day's paper. It will be seen that the experience of the Parisian authorities in this matter fully justifies the view expressed by THE STAR some time ago in commenting on Gen. Sherman's extraordinary letter to a friend in Chicago in regard to street pavements, viz: that the Macadam style of pavement is only sultable for suburban roads and park drives and cannot be used to advantage in the much traveled streets of cities on account of the great expense of repair and the mud and dust they create. Another gratifying feature of this exhibit is the fact that in the matter of economy the advantage is altogether with Washington. This is contrary to the general impression. It has been almost uniformly supposed that pavements of the same kind cost much more here than in Paris, while in fact they cost more than twice as much there as they do in Washington. Nor is this all. The pavements of Washington are smoother than those in Paris, and probably better. At least the cost of keeping them in repair is considerably less. It is also to be said in favor of Washington, as against the French capital, that as a rule her streets that are paved with asphalt and stone blocks are kept cleaner than those of Paris paved with like material. In short, where the new and better pavements are laid, Washington is by odds the best paved and the cleanest city in the world.

There is no doubt that the sentiment of the country is favorable to a revision of the tariff. The slight steps taken by the ways and means committee to reduce the duties on certain articles and to enlarge the free list do not meet public expectation, even if they should take the form of law, which, with the proposed early adjournment, is now hardly probable. Nor will the adoption of Mr. Eaton's plan, pending in the Senate, to provide a commission to sit during the recess and discuss a revision, meet the popular demand. Both parties have resorted to that expediency heretofore, and naught come of it. No commission can adjust the absurdities and iniquities of the tarin satisfactory to Congress and the country. The theories and details of tariff reform have been so thoroughly discussed in and out of Congress that the time must be at hand when those who favor a tariff for revenue and those who support one for protection can meet on some common ground of compromise in the interest of the public good.

With the public debt refunded at a low rate of interest and a Treasury overflowing with revenue, it would seem that there was never a better time than now to commence a revision of our customs laws. It is no longer a party question, as the votes in the House have shown for many years past, though the repeated failures to secure a reduction of taxation indicate that there is a party of special interests whose cohesiveness is almost equal to that which was organized in Congress in other days for public plunder. In a purely party light, the democrats, having control of both houses, are responsible for any failure to reduce the high rates of duties. The strongest plank in the St. Louis platform demanded this reform, and promised it when they should get control. The account of twelve months of stewardship on this question when rendered at Cincinnati, a little more than a month from now, will be interesting.

The resolution of inquiry in regard to the Washington Monument, introduced in the Senate, on the 7th inst., by Senator Jones of Florida. is a measure to be deplored in every healthy point of view. Primarily its effect is to still further delay the work upon that long suffering structure. That delay, and delay only, is the object of the resolution is apparent on its face; but, without at all intending to reflect on the motives of the gentleman who introduced it, it may safely be said that it was inspired in the interest of those who feel that they can profit in some way by changes in the plan which they hope may yet be made. As a matter of fact, there is no need of such an inquiry at all, and particularly is there no reason for asking to have the desired information furnished "on the second Monday of December." The animus of the measure is clearly disclosed by this requirement. Every inquiry contained in the resolution could be answered at once by the engineer in charge. Indeed, all the vital questions propounded or suggested by it have aiready been practically answered by the memorial of the Monument Association, now before Congress in House Miscellaneous Document No. 37.

If the members of the two houses would carefully read and weigh that document and accompanying papers, they would see that there is not enly no longer any good ex u e for delaying the work on the monument, but that every reason exists for pushing it forward to early completion. This the country expects, and has a right to expect. To longer keep the monument in its present shape after so much money has been expended on it, and especially since its foundation has been made perfectly secure, would be not only an insult to the memory of Washington, but at once a disgrace to Congress and to the people of the United States.

Col. A. Lowden Snowden, the superintendent of the Philadelphia mint, and an active and influential member of the republican party in that city, has been indulging in some practical talk before the American Historical Society in which he earnestly advocated civil service reform. The remedy for the evils of the present system he suggested should be "the removal by law of the civil service of the country from under the control of partisan interference, and prevent its subordinates from an active participation therein."

The proposition that this government shall guarantee the interest on the bonds of a proposed inter-oceanic railway, is, of course, a practical subvention for the whole road. This step, while questionable enough in this country at this day, would be of still more doubtful propriety in a foreign country, where unforseen complications are likely to arise at any time. There is an abundance of capital in the world to build the ship-railway across the Isthmus or dig the canal, and once its feasibility is established it will need no financial endorsement from this or any other government. The fact that the Southern Pacific has been built over a thousand miles without the monied aid or guarantee of the government, and that the Texas Pacific is also going ahead without either, is proof enough that great enterprises do not, in this country, at least, need subsidies It will be a safe and wise rule to logically follow in this instance the teachings of the Monroe doctrine, and neither invite nor permit complications of that E'sewhere in to-day's STAR will be found the full text of a bill for the assessment and tatation of property in the District of Columbia, proposed by the citizens' committee as a substitute for the assessment and taxation clauses of the new municipal code for the District, now pending in Congress.

Visitors to Washington at this season are loud in their praises of the beauties of this city as seen in the smooth, clean streets, and under the full glow and luxuriance of its miles of shade trees. With a climate "steeped in sunshine," they pronounce it the most charming place to visit in the prime and vigor of the year.

Letters from some of the proprietors of the various summer resorts state that they are re ceiving applications earlier than usual and this is confirmed by those who are consulting the advertisements of "summer resorts" and "country board" in THE STAR. There is over a col. umn in te-day's issue, which is largely in excess of the number last year at this time.

There are 133 new advertisements in THE STAR to day, making 1107 thus far in May.
